

Editorial Contact: Jason Davidson
pr@ultralevel.com
UltraLevel, Inc.
www.ultralevel.com
Phone: (313) 875-1111

UltraLevel Offers its Office Online Service to Businesses Devastated by Katrina

Detroit, Michigan, - September 7, 2005— UltraLevel, Inc., a Detroit-based provider of utility computing solutions for Small and Mid-Sized businesses, today announced it is offering free virtual computing solutions to help businesses that were adversely affected by hurricane Katrina transition to recovery.

“Obviously, the most immediate need for the gulf region is humanitarian aid to relieve the human suffering caused by Katrina. However, in order for the area to return to some semblance of normalcy any time soon, the economic engine of the region must also be restored. This includes doing everything possible to assist the business community to rebuild and recover, and that includes restoring basic Information Technology (IT) infrastructure to those businesses devastated by Katrina”, says UltraLevel’s President and CEO, Michael L. Butz Sr.

UltraLevel’s Office Online subscription service will provide these businesses with access to Microsoft Office 2003, Microsoft Exchange 2003 with full e-mail service, compatible line of business software, and secure file storage via the Internet.

To obtain more information please contact UltraLevel at (313) 875-1111 or e-mail info@ultralevel.com.

About UltraLevel

Located in Detroit’s New Center area, UltraLevel’s mission is to help companies achieve business goals and objectives through the creative and cost effective use of Information Technology, while understanding that the “financial bottom line” is the key measurement of success. UltraLevel’s goal is to be recognized by its customers and vendors as a leading provider of Information Technology solutions, but more importantly, as trusted business advisors.

# #